DOSAGE AND DIRECTIONS FOR USE: Use only as directed.

V.H. + H-120 Vaccine may be administered to poultry of all ages via the drinking water, as an eye drop or as an aerosol spray.

Consult a veterinarian for the best vaccination programme for your circumstances.

Drinking Water method:

Do not use this method before chicks have learned to drink readily (3 - 4 days old).

See package insert for complete instructions.

Eye Drop method:

This method can be used when a smaller number of birds need to be vaccinated.

See package insert for complete instructions.

Aerosol Spray method:

This is a rapid, labour-saving method for the vaccination of large flocks.

A dedicated sprayer, delivering a coarse spray (> 100 microns), may be used to spray day-old chicks immediately after hatching, or in the brooder house.

It is essential to use an electric sprayer or fogger giving a fine, more uniform mist for older fowls.

As untoward reactions may occur, particularly in flocks infected with Mycoplasma gallisepticum, it is advisable to consult your veterinarian on vaccination programmes and precautions to be taken.

Mild respiratory symptoms may be observed 3 - 7 days after vaccination and should subside within 10 - 14 days.

PRECAUTIONS:

See package insert.

Store between 2°C and 8 °C. Protect from light.
